Goodman rebrands GELF to Goodman European Partnership (GEP)

Date 12 November 2015

Release Immediate

Goodman European Logistics Fund (GELF or Fund) announces the commercial rebranding to Goodman European Partnership (GEP or Partnership).

The rebranding of GELF to GEP is part of a global rebranding initiative, in-line with the search of global investors in recent years to focus their global real estate investment programmes with sector specialists across a number of geographic markets. Goodman has created strong relationships with its investors, who have partnered with Goodman in its existing vehicles and sponsored the creation of new ones. Consequently, and as part of the ongoing review of the business, management seeks to align its communications to more appropriately reflect the long-term partnership approach taken on property investment alongside global investors.

Emmanuel Van der Stichele, manager of GEP, said: “Both the rebrand of Goodman’s Fund Management business to Investment Management and referring to our Investors as Partners are intended to more accurately describe the key elements of responsibility, principally making the right real estate investment decisions in combination with appropriate and prudent capital management strategies. It will also reflect the value of the long-term nature of the relationships built together over many years around the world. While this initiative will not impact the day-to-day operations of GEP, the new naming convention has started to appear throughout all of our marketing and communication materials from 1 November 2015.” Importantly, this is only a branding change and will not result in redrafting of documents as all existing legal names and legal forms remain unchanged.

GEP aims to deliver stable, income-driven returns to its partners. With a portfolio valued at €2.3 billion, GEP is a leading unlisted real estate investment vehicle in continental Europe, with 100 assets in a portfolio totalling 3.9 million sqm of warehouse space across 11 countries.
